

13 A gas is stored in a container of constant volume.

The temperature of the gas is increased.

What happens to the particles of the gas?

A The distance between the particles increases.

B The mass of the particles increases.

C The number of particles increases.

D The speed of the particles increases.